VICTIM OF AMERICAN LAW

Came on Lucania and Started for Etruria to Go Back to South-

NEW YORK, July 25 .- Because of red tape in the Immigration Bureau, Montgomery Newman, a citizen of Manches-ter, England, is spending today on Ellis Island. He had expected to be on the rolling deep, hurrying back to the British Isles on the Etruria

Newman arrived in the United States this morning and was landed from the Cunard liner Lucania just half an hour before the Etruria was pulled out from the other side of the pier. He had bury's PHARMACY, corner Monroe and Jeffer-counted on that. With the aid of his son sts. friends and steamship officials in Liverpool he had figured out that the Lucania would get to her pier in New York early Saturday morning, July 23, and that the Etruria would leave for Liverpool few minutes later. He had been sick and his doctor recommended a sea voy-

Not having an abundance of funds but wishing to regain his health, he came over in the steerage, intending to Rush for Etruria.

When the Lucania's passengers got on the pier and Newman started to rush over to the Etruria, whose gangplank was just about to be raised on the opposite side of the dock, he was held up by an immigration official.

'Cawn't you get out of me way!' cried Newman, frantically. "I want to board the Etruria!"

"I can't help what you want to do," said the gateman. "You're going to Ellis Isiand. That's where you're going. You're an immigrant. Understand?" Newman said he would not go, and sought out the captain of the Lucania. The captain and other officers of the ship did their best to get Newman aboard the outgoing liner.

Wanted to Go Home.

"I say," cried Newman, angrily, "I don't want to stay in the country.

So Newman, chagrined, indignant, and insisting that America is not a free country, but a network of red tape, was taken to Ellis Island. He will return to Liverpool Tuesday on the patrick J. Ford, formerly slow steamship Aurania.
"I can't say that I like this country," said he. "There is too much trouble about getting out."

Drives Him Frantic, But Is Removed With Velvet Wings Intact After Operation.

PHIRADELPHIA, July 25.—Frantic from a sensation in his head which he said was like the crashing of a brass band, John Robinson, aged twenty-two years, of 508 South Eleventh Street, rushed into the Pennsylvania Hospital TAX SCHEDULES DUE. and begged the physicians to give him

Several physicians examined the man's with its delicate wings intact, was re-moved. Robinson felt almost instant relief from pain and left the hospital

He said that while walking near his home earlier in the evening he felt some object strike his ear and then followed a tickling sensation. An instant later a tickling sensation. An instant later there was a buzzing and a thousand varied sounds which the physicians at the hospital declared would have set him crazy in a very short time if the insect had not been removed.

Robinson went to the office of a physician near Eleventh and Bainbridge Streets and asked him to examine his ear, but the physician falled to remove the insect. Robinson then went to the Pennsylvania Hospital.
